

FlexibleDrive

When it comes to hydraulics
there's a new kid on the block.

We're new to hydraulics.
We're independent.
And we want to work with you.

For decades we've specialised in control systems and replacement parts, working with industries like mining, power generation, transport, marine and defence.

We're Australia's leading repairer, designer and manufacturer of cables and controls. Over the years there's been a progression from cable technologies to hydraulics, so it's only natural that Flexible Drive are now offering a range of hydraulics. And we believe that's going to help you.

We're independents working for independents.

Like you, we know what it means to be independent. Our competitors are more established than we are, so we have to be more agile, more dedicated and, above all, more focused on the needs of our customers. We have to try harder, and we do.

We're Australia wide.

We're a long-established, national business. That means our hydraulics business will be backed by the same category management, engineering, a national network of six state offices, buying power and state-of-the-art software as the rest of our business.

We want to work with you.

We're asking you to help build and improve our hydraulics program by working with us. Being independent also means we listen and learn. And because we're new to this category we'll bend over backwards to improve availability, price and advice. So call us now on 1300 36 37 35, because we're independents building a business for independents.

Independents like you.
